

CST142 – Programming in C
Lab #4

Program #1

Build a program that uses a single dimension character array to store 10 character input by the user.

After inputting the character, the user should see a menu with two options – to sort and print the 10 characters in ascending or descending alphabetic order. Have the program follow through with which ever options the user chooses.